RACIAL PREFERENCE AND SUBURBAN JOB OPPORTUNITIES

Makiyah Moody is a magna cum laude graduate of Wheaton College, where she concentrated in Hispanic Studies and sociology. She was the Dean's intern for multicultural issues and president of the Black Students' Association. She spent her junior year in Cordoba, Spain, and worked with abandoned children in Peru. After Makiyah finished working on this study, she completed a Master's Degree in Humanities at the University of Chicago, taught Spanish in the GEAR UP Program at UIC, and is now working with Leadership for Quality Education, an educational non-profit that supports innovation in public education through charter and small schools.

Genevieve (Jennie) Nolan was Makiyah's testing partner. Jennie is a 2000 graduate of the University of Illinois in Champaign, where she majored in sociology and political science. She interned at the Champaign County State's Attorney's Office, worked on the Ulster Project (a program to bridge gaps between Catholic and Protestant teenagers in Northern Ireland), and helped on Al Gore's presidential campaign. Since finishing her job at LAF, Jennie has worked as a testing coordinator for a fair housing organization. Jennie is in her first year of law school at the University of Pittsburgh, and continues to do discrimination testing on a part-time basis.

Robyn Donaldson graduated with honors from Florida A & M University in 1999, with a major in journalism and public relations and a minor in criminal justice. She interned for Sen. Bob Graham (D-Fla.), and was active in the NAACP Political Action Committee. In 2000, she worked on the Gore campaign. Robyn is now in her second year at John Marshall Law School, and was featured in the book Profiles and Essays of Outstanding African-American Law School Admits. Robyn consults with not-for-profit agencies in the Chicagoland area on testing projects.

Morgen Alexander-Young was Robyn's testing partner. Morgen is a 2000 graduate of Smith College, with a major in government and comparative politics. She does crisis intervention work at Cook County Hospital.
